The Aramaic script, a consonantal alphabet, was adapted over time into various forms—most notably the Pahlavi script used in Middle Persian texts.

The Transition to the Persian Alphabet

With the advent of Islam and the subsequent adoption of the Arabic script, Persian writers began to modify the script to better suit the phonetics of Persian. This adaptation gave rise to the Perso-Arabic script, which incorporated additional letters and diacritical marks to represent Persian sounds not originally present in Arabic.

Evolution and Standardization

Throughout the centuries, Persian script underwent standardization, influenced by regional calligraphic styles and technological developments such as printing. The script's flexibility allowed variations like Nasta'liq, Shekasteh, and Naskh, each serving different aesthetic and functional purposes.
