The Role of the Historical Novel in Lukács's Thought

Lukács believed that the historical novel embodied the dialectical process of history and society. It was a form capable of capturing the totality of social relations, revealing the struggle of individuals within their historical contexts. For Lukács, the historical novel was a means of achieving verisimilitude—a realistic portrayal of social realities—while also engaging readers in a dialectical process of understanding societal change.

The Key Features of the Historical Novel According to Lukács

- Representation of Social Totality

Lukács emphasized that the historical novel must depict the totality of social life. This means integrating various social classes, institutions, and ideologies into a coherent narrative that reflects the complexity of history.

The dialectical method is at the core of Lukács's approach. In the context of the historical novel, it involves illustrating the contradictions within society—such as class struggles—that propel historical change.

- Character as a Social Individual

Characters in the historical novel are not isolated entities; they embody social relations and class interests. Their development and conflicts mirror the dialectical process of societal transformation.
