- Ancient Greece: Play included athletic competitions such as wrestling and running, which also served as training for warfare.
- Ancient China: Children played traditional games like Jianzi (shuttlecock kicking), which emphasized agility and coordination.

Despite the differences, play in these civilizations was often communal and reinforced social bonds, with adults participating in games that reflected cultural values.

Medieval and Renaissance Play

During the medieval period, play became more structured, often reflecting the social hierarchy and martial needs of the time.

- Children's Play: Toys such as wooden swords, dolls, and marbles were common, but play was often supervised and limited to the upper classes.
- Adult Recreation: Jousting tournaments, hunting, and courtly dances typified leisure activities among the nobility.

The Renaissance period saw a revival of interest in arts and sports, with the emergence of more organized activities like archery contests and theatrical performances, which also served as social gatherings.
